Fanthoms in the City is a hip hop tune produced by Fantom with vocals by Tokyo-based artist Dionysos EL featuring OneTwenty. The song is about a supernatural species called Fanthoms who boast immortality while using their gifts, called "Capabilities" or "capes" to covertly assist Humanity.

Dionysos grips the listener with otherworldly yet snappy vocals leading up to a gritty rap by OneTwenty giving us something unique.

Producer Fantom makes us dance with trap style drums & spooky synths creating something truly mystical. Fans of Migos, Future, and Bow-wow, will enjoy this new-wave masterpiece.

"I want to show that music can have other purposes outside of songs for partying or visiting violence on others, it can also be used to share and drive a narrative, as well as be used for functional purposes. In other words: music can be used to generate energy to get things done or consciously alter one's perception of self to create a whole new reality to operate in as one's own best version."

Born in Modesto, California, Dionysos grew up back and forth between California and Georgia. This exposed him to the distinct style of the 'Dirty South' hip hop and the laid back style of West Coast rap.

As a teenager Dionysos was also strongly influenced by Tupac Shakur. His choice of college (Kent State in Ohio) was influenced by his favorite hip hop group from Cleveland, Ohio called Bone Thugs-N-Harmony.

After graduating, he moved to Japan where he has been living for 18 years. Tokyo is where his style really developed by combining his love of science, philosophy, metaphysics and music to form an ultra unique style that stems from Rap, Hip Hop, and R&B. In fact, this style is so unique that it is in its own genre which he has dubbed 'Tomorrow Music'.
